NAPN is Going Green

This year, we will be "going green" to make our conference environmentally-friendly!

What does this mean for you?

- You will be sent your conference schedule, electronically

- After registering, you will be provided a bar code as part of check-in. Please remember to bring this to the conference on your smartphone or a printed version to sign into each session

- No paper copies of the agenda will be available at the conference
About NAPN

Since the early 1980’s, providers working with sexually abusive children and adolescents have shared information through the National Adolescent Perpetration Network (NAPN), the only national organization focused entirely on these youths. NAPN is a voluntary, multidisciplinary, inclusive and non-hierarchical network, bringing together professionals and paraprofessionals from child welfare, juvenile justice, and mental health.

More than three decades of work have informed enormous changes in our understanding of juvenile sexual offending, and best practices for prevention and intervention continue to evolve. Good news has abounded in discoveries from research that inform a more comprehensive holistic understanding of the functioning of youth. With the intervening economic stresses, it becomes increasingly important to maximize the effective use of scarce resources and to advocate for successful strategies in our communities. The need for continuing education is clear, if we are to bring the most up-to-date services to the youth we treat and maximize safety in our communities. New information is constantly changing what we need to know and do in practice and the annual NAPN conferences are all about sharing up-to-date information!
About the 2018 NAPN Annual National Conference

NAPN's Annual Conferences provide a safe haven and the opportunity for us to share and renew our commitment to preventing sexual abuse. Challenging, validating & sharing; Struggling with common dilemmas; Discovering new solutions; Enlightening & Supporting each other. These are the goals for presentations on laws and policy; juvenile justice, assessment & treatment, probation, community supervision & care. Particularly timely are strategies for maximizing services with scarce resources, use of risk assessment and typology research in policy and treatment planning, dealing with sibling relationships, transitions into adult independence for emancipating youth, neurological and psychiatric interventions, community safety. So much has been learned through practice experience and discoveries from research that inform our understanding of the growth, development, and functioning of youth. Today’s models for treatment of sexually abusive youth are dramatically different from the modified adult programs the field started with in the 1980’s. By addressing factors specifically relevant to juveniles that decrease the risks of sexual deviance and abusive dynamics while increasing the opportunity for healthy relationships and successful outcomes, treatment is likely to achieve results far beyond the initial goals of containment and risk management. Current models aim to decrease the risks of sexual problems and abusive dynamics while increasing the capacity for healthy relationships and successful futures. Yet many policies and laws conflict with and are contraindicated by the research, making it imperative that we advocate for successful strategies which promote positive outcomes for the youth and for our communities.

More than ever before, the need for continuing education is clear as we share news from research, case management and clinical practice to bring the most up to date services to the youth we treat and work to prevent others from beginning to perpetrate sexual abuse. New information is changing what we need to know and do in practice and the annual NAPN conference is all about sharing!

This year’s conference will welcome diverse, multidisciplinary professionals - working with youth in a wide range of roles and settings - to explore the implications of research and experience and provide a chance to connect with and support each other in working with the troubled and troubling youth who perpetrate sexual abuse. NAPN in May, promises statistically less chance of big snows throughout the country; and the venue promises an enthusiastic welcome for NAPN. Conveniently located only blocks from the National Mall, museums galore, easy access to the Metro, and hotels for all budgets, the NAPN Annual Conference is an amazing Continuing Education experience (earn up to 17 CE Hours)!
Conference Registration Cost: $249 Member Rate | $299 Non-Member Rate
